

National Network of Partnership Schools at Johns Hopkins University

Joyce L. Epstein, Director

Educators and families agree that school, family, and community partnerships are essential for children's success in school.

Based on more than three decades of research and the work of many educators, parents, students, and others, we know that it is possible for all elementary, middle, and high schools to develop and sustain strong programs of partnerships that help students succeed.

Districts and states can establish policies and take leadership to help all schools develop excellent programs of partnerships.

As a member of the National Network of Partnership Schools (NNPS), you will be guided, supported, and recognized in your efforts to maintain goal-oriented school, family, and community connections.

What is the National Network of Partnership Schools?

Established at Johns Hopkins University in 1996, the National Network of Partnership Schools (NNPS) assists schools, districts, states, and organizations that are committed to developing strong programs of school, family, and community partnerships. Each Partnership School strengthens its program with an Action Team for Partnerships, a framework of six types of involvement to engage parents in different ways, and a written action plan for goal-oriented family and community involvement linked to the school improvement plan. District, state, and other leaders assist schools to develop, evaluate, and continually improve their partnership programs.

Membership Requirements

Members work with NNPS to improve connections with students, families, and communities. Schools, districts, and states must meet a few requirements.

Developing good connections of home, school, and community is an on-going process that takes time, organization, and effort.

NNPS offers a research-based framework, tools, and strategies that enable all schools, districts, and states to organize school, family, and community partnerships to improve schools, strengthen families, and increase student success.

Organization and university partners are welcome to join NNPS to assist schools and districts in their regions.

To join NNPS, there is a $200 processing fee for schools; $300 for districts, states, and organizations.

Annual renewal fees are waived for all members that return the annual UPDATE survey.
