Ramstein American High School

Ramstein Air Base, Germany

Ramstein High School (RHS) has a web site for all persons interested in knowing more about the school. The site allows anyone to communicate, learn, offer suggestions, and become acquainted with the school. The site originated several years ago, but has grown dramatically this school year.

The web site (<http://rams-hs.odedodea.edu>) at Ramstein High school provides an incredible amount of information. For those preparing to make a permanent change of station into the school district to former graduates of RHS, the web site is ready to address all of their school needs. Information on registration, graduation requirements, school rules and regulations, and scholarship opportunities abound. The web site is updated daily during the school year to provide information to parents and students in a timely manner.

The program runs in tandem with the telecommunications course and the school's computer network. The Computer Science department has given a vast amount of time and energy to making this a successful program. With their efforts, the web site has developed into one of the best school web sites.

Students are actively involving themselves in the web site with the recently created section called "Dear Diva." Visitors are encouraged to write in and express their opinion regarding any subject close to their hearts. In addition, visitors also will find information regarding the successes of our students at RHS (honor rolls, team participation, awards, and clubs), links to local activities within the community, news, and weather.

Overall, students, faculty, parents, and community members have enjoyed visiting the web site. Parents can check students' assignments in some courses and report feeling very involved in the events occurring at RHS due to their participation with the site. The number of "hits" continues to multiply encouraging further site expansion.
